

MODULE 3 SOCIAL RELEVANCE

4.1 Organisation and management of R&D&I

- It should be also underlined that the ITB should create a technical body under the vice-rector for research to support the research activities, by spreading among the institution the open calls at national and European level and to give all the support in the contests' participation.
- I think we could state that we have a system set up, where the OPP monitoring calls to individual directors of the institute are sent at regular intervals, who are then sent to their departments and departments. Appropriate support for employees (not only AP) in project calls is provided by the OPP - from writing the application to the actual implementation.

4.2 Support system of R&D&I and measures to stimulate high-quality science

- However, the ITB should develop a technical body under the vice-rector for research to support the research activities, because, as a young HEI, there exists a problem with collecting data related to precise recording of publications and projects.
- I think we should mention the ETMS system, the connection to the IS and, of course, the planned budget and goals. Regarding the registration of separates, the system is set up. Inserting publications has clear rules, participation in projects as well.
